Water Supply Committee to Meet Wednesday

Average to well-above average snow packs throughout Idaho's mountains is welcome after the several years of drought. However, too much snow could spell problems for northern Idaho residents or in river basins that lack storage reservoirs like the Weiser River Basin with an increased potential for flooding.

Members of the Idaho Water Supply Committee will meet Wednesday afternoon at the Idaho Water Center to review the latest data and assess the possibility for flooding, as well as the outlook for irrigation supplies for the upcoming season. The Water Supply Committee includes water managers and hydrology experts from both the private and public sectors. Each will provide input used to formulate a comprehensive water picture for 2008.

The meeting is open to the public.

When: Wednesday, February 13, 2008

Where: Idaho Water Center, 322 E. Front Street, Boise, on the sixth floor. Conference rooms A & B.

Time: 10:00 a.m.

Parking is located in the Water Center parking garage and note that there is a fee to park in the garage.
